

Thereafter, legends suggest that at least one royal daughter of the line of Judah survived, and left Egypt accompanied by her grandfather, the prophet Jeremiah. Soon after, one or more of these princesses of Judah supposedly arrived in Ireland, married with the princes of the ruling Celtic (and therefore Lost Israelite) family, and set up a new royal dynasty. In fact, the lion symbols used in Heraldry may signify the existence of this royal bloodline, and the physical location of David's royal descendents today. In conjunction with the lion, a heraldic unicorn symbol is often used, which ties the royal line of the Tribe of Judah to the Tribes of Joseph and Dan. The following sections will explain why.

Enoch's Prophecy Of The Unicorn - A Symbol For Christ

The unicorn has long been an object of fascination for many, combining the power and beauty of a white horse with a single, golden horn. Coupled with a long, flowing mane and tail, the modern and medieval European unicorn is a creature of ethereal beauty. Myths surrounding the unicorn abound, and creatures with a single horn have long been recognized as a symbol for either good or evil in cultures around the world. Few ancient unicorns, however, resemble the horse-like unicorn of today. The white, horse-like unicorn most commonly depicted today has its origins in medieval times, when it was used as a symbol for Christ. It therefore took on Christ's most notable attributes - being gentle, loving, pure, and chaste like Christ was.

Unfortunately, there are far older associations with this one-horned animal that have sinister roots, such as the unicorns of China and Babylon. In recent times, the unicorn has taken on similar occult associations, as the New Age Movement has adopted it as a symbol. To them, it represents transformation and transcendence, and as such they openly encourage their children to find their own unicorn guides. They do this in hopes that their children will ascend to the level of avatar, or ascended master faster than the rest of mortals who must supposedly live countless lives before achieving this dubious state of perfection on their own.

Regardless of the occult associations of unicorns today, unicorns undeniably represented the ultimate goodness, and holiness of Yahshua in the medieval world, as already mentioned. So there is a duality to this powerful symbol that is undisputable, and also very perplexing. How can a symbol of purity and goodness also be reckoned as a symbol for evil and unrestrained power, and how can we tell the difference if they look the same on the surface? The answer is found in the gift of spiritual discernment. This gift of the Holy Spirit allows Christians to absolutely know the difference between good and evil, and to ascertain the meanings of the symbols used for each opposing force.

As I have maintained throughout this series, Yahweh Elohim is the ultimate designer and revealer of symbols. In "The Language of God in the Universe," I showed how the cross, with its definite connection to Astronomy, is a very powerful symbol for Christ, who is the Creator of the Universe, and the Gospel in the Stars. Now, in this book, I will show that the unicorn - like the number 13, the two Enochs, and the two Cainans - has both good and bad connotations, and can represent both perfect good - and unmitigated evil. First, let's explore the benevolent side of the unicorn in folklore, the Star Gospel, and 1 Enoch.

As shown in Chapter Seven, the unicorn can be used to symbolize the right horn or hand of a Cherub, which signifies Yahshua at the right hand of His Father. This suggests that the left horn of a Cherub represents a personage that is opposite to Christ, like the Antichrist. We will examine this idea in the next section, but for now, let's focus on the unicorn as a godly symbol for Christ.

In Medieval times, the unicorn was used as a symbol for Christ. Could this be because it was found as a messianic symbol in the Book of 1 Enoch? Although 1 Enoch was supposedly lost to the West at that time, somebody in Europe or the British Isles may have had some knowledge of its prophecies. I suspect this because, in one of his prophetic visions, Enoch describes Christ and His Church as a powerful One-Horned Ram that opens the eyes of many lost sheep:

"And I saw till there sprouted a great horn (symbol of authority) of one of those sheep, and their eyes were opened (they see the truth that sets them free from Satan's bondage). And it looked at them [and their eyes opened], and it cried to the sheep (the newly-saved sheep), and the rams (spiritual leaders) saw it and all ran to it. And notwithstanding all this those eagles and vultures and ravens and kites (followers of the prince of the power of the air) still kept tearing the sheep and swooping down upon them and devouring them (these devoured ones are the martyrs of God): still the sheep remained silent, but the rams lamented and cried out (the leaders begin to teach the truth). And those ravens fought and battled with it (the One-Horned Ram and His Church) and sought to lay low its horn, but they had no power over it."

"All the eagles and vultures and ravens and kites were gathered together, and there came with them all the "sheep" (incorrectly translated as sheep, should say beasts - as per the next sentence) of the field, yea, they all came together, and helped each other to break that horn of the ram. And I saw till a great sword (i.e. the sword of the Holy Spirit) was given to the sheep (i.e. those who follow the One-Horned Ram), and the sheep proceeded against all the beasts of the field (the armies of the wicked in rebellion against God) to slay them (at the Battle of Armageddon), and all the beasts and the birds of the heaven fled before their face.” - 1 Enoch 90:9-19

As shown by my comments in parentheses, this section of Enoch’s lengthy prophecy in chapters 89 and 90 of 1 Enoch is brimful of the allegorical Language of God. It is very rich in symbolism that must be spiritually understood before it can be correctly deciphered. First of all, as discussed in Book Two, sheep and goats represent two very different kinds of people. Goats want to lead, for example, while sheep want to follow. We can therefore deduce that the sheep in Enoch’s vision are people who follow some greater cause. Likewise, Rams are horned male sheep, and their horns mark them as the leaders of the sheep who have been given the authority to lead. Since sheep were often used in Yahshua’s parables to signify His followers, the sheep in Enoch’s vision also represent repentant sinners, and the rams signify the spiritual leaders of the sheep. Meanwhile, the beasts of the field in Enoch’s vision represent the unrepentant wicked who will perish.

Note also that all the birds mentioned in Enoch’s vision are birds of prey with sharp beaks and talons. Birds of prey, as the most villainous birds, make excellent symbols for Satan’s followers. Furthermore, birds are the only animals that can view the air as their natural domain. Since they rule the air, the birds in Enoch’s vision likely represent the armies and servants of “the prince of the power of the air,” who is Satan, and his servant, the Antichrist:

“...you once walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit who now works in the sons of disobedience...” - Ephesians 2:2

The horns and rams mentioned in Enoch’s prophecy refer to leaders among the people who are working against the prince of the power of the air who is Satan. Therefore, when Enoch mentions the One-Horned Ram, or Unicorn’s power to open the eyes of the sheep, he is speaking of the power of Christ and His Spirit to illumine the hearts and minds of those who love Him. The sheep whose eyes are opened may also allude directly to the 144,000 Witnesses chosen from among the descendents of the Twelve Tribes of Israel, who will act as Yah-ordained evangelists during the Tribulation period (Rev. 7:3-8). It is Yahshua’s chosen sheep or disciples that the opposing nations attempt to crush. These wicked and rebellious nations that go against the One-Horned Ram and His sheep are envisioned as birds that kill and/or eat flesh, and beasts that do the same.

As discussed in the last chapter, Enoch foretold that there would be 70 Shepherds of Israel before the Messiah comes. Of these 70, only 12 Shepherds are reported for the modern nation of Israel, and according to my detailed analysis of the prophecy in Chapter 9, Benjamin Netanyahu is the 12th and last Prime Minister. That is - unless the previous Prime Minister Ariel Sharon somehow revives from his long coma, and becomes fit enough to rule before the Battle of Armageddon. Although this is remotely possible, it is extremely doubtful.

During the twelfth and last Shepherd of Israel's rule, Enoch envisioned Yahshua as the Ram with one great and powerful "horn" that opens the eyes of all the people (the sheep) that desire to know and love God. Since a horn is an instrument of protection on an animal, and an animal's horn that has been treated a special way can be used to drink from or play a tune, the horn of this Ram Who is Yahshua is allegorically referring to the Living Water and proclamations of His Word in the Bible, and in the Gospel in the Stars, which are both announcing His good and perfect Will, and that serve to awaken those who are spiritually asleep!

Enoch foresees the Battle of Armageddon, when the "rams" or male "sheep" (i.e. leaders and soldiers for Christ) of the great One-Horned Ram, or Unicorn will finally defeat their foes. Their victory is won through the "great sword" that signifies the Word of God, Yahshua. This is clear from the allegorical imagery used in Revelation 19:15 and 19:21 quoted earlier. Though this great sword likely signifies purely divine spiritual power, it may signify a supernatural weapon such as the Staff of Yahweh that will suddenly resurface at a crucial time for the heavily persecuted, but multitudinous body of Tribulation Saints. See Book Three for more about the wondrous Staff of Yahweh that Moses worked many miracles with.

Because the prophecy of the great One-Horned Ram in the Book of 1 Enoch mentions eagles, vultures, kites, and ravens as symbols of evil people and nations, it seems to contradict the symbol of an eagle or hawk as a godly symbol associated with heavenly things. However, as previously discussed, the Tribe of Dan was represented by an eagle to hide their identification with the serpent imagery connected with evil. In addition, the eagles used by the Danites, the Romans, European royalty, and various European nations were always solid black, red, brown, or gold. Not one of these nations used the image of a white bird, or white-headed bird such as the Bald Eagle as a symbol.

Though a bird of prey can be viewed as a symbol for evil, there is also Scriptural evidence that both eagles and bird's wings are symbols of God's love and protection:

"You have seen what I did to the Egyptians, and how I bore you on eagles' wings and brought you to Myself." - Exodus 19:4

"Keep me as the apple of Your eye; hide me under the shadow of Your wings..." - Psalm 17:8

"He shall cover you with His feathers, and under His wings you shall take refuge; his truth shall be your shield and buckler." - Psalm 91:4

"But those who wait on the LORD (Yahweh) shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings like eagles, they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint." - Isaiah 40:31

Just as birds like eagles obviously have a dual significance in prophecy, a One-Horned White Ram may represent more than Christ and His Church. It also may represent one nation in particular that will rise to spiritual prominence in the End Times. As the staunchest defender of the nation of Israel in today's world, and the most "Christian" presence among the nations, the United States of America may be the nation symbolized by the one horn of the Ram representing Christ and His Church. Though there are true Christians all over the world, no other nation on Earth has as many born-again, Spirit-filled Christians per capita as the United States.

As already mentioned, the prophecy in 1 Enoch may be the source of the medieval notion that the mythical one-horned unicorn symbolized Yahshua. Since this tradition of representing Christ as a unicorn sprang up in Europe during the Dark Ages, it is likely that the Book of 1 Enoch was known to someone in that era, but was later lost. Though the written record of the connection was lost, however, the linking of the unicorn with Yahshua persisted. This is likely why the word "unicorn" was used nine times by the translator of the King James Bible for the Hebrew word "reem" that more correctly means "wild ox." As mentioned in "The Language of God in the Universe," Cherubim appear as ox-like in appearance in Ezekiel's visions, and were used to symbolize the Universe, and the Twelve Tribes of Israel. The symbol of an ox is also connected to the dual Tribe of Joseph, whose tribal standard contained a depiction of a wild bull, or ox with two horns. Here is one occurrence of the word “unicorn” in the King James Bible:

“Save me from the lion’s mouth: for thou hast heard me from the horns of the unicorns.” - Psalm 22:21 (KJV)

The King James translation of this particular verse of Scripture has an authority that other Bible translations lack. This is because it tells us something prophetic, whereas the other translations have lost all their power to instruct due to their wording. For example, most translations tell us that the person or nation crying for help in this passage wants to be saved from both the lion’s mouth, and the horns of a wild ox. However, the King James translation tells us that the supplicant is asking to be saved from the lion’s mouth by calling for help through the horn of the unicorn!

This passage is a messianic prophecy that allegorically represents Christ’s prayer as He died on the Cross. As a prophecy, it likely has a dual application. Therefore, if viewed prophetically, this passage may be telling us that the modern nation of Israel will be threatened by the jaws of the lion (i.e.: Great Britain, via the Antichrist’s armies), and will call on Christ’s born-again followers in America (i.e.: the horn of the unicorn) for help in her direst hour. This has already occurred in Israel’s history in relation to the lion-like aggression of the Arabs toward Israel, and it will no doubt happen again.

The association made here of Great Britain with the lion was fully explained in the analysis of Daniel’s and Revelation’s prophecies concerning the Beast from the Sea. See Numbers 23:22, 24:8; Deut. 33:17; Job 39:9-10; Psalm 22:21, 29:6, 92:10; and Isaiah 34:7 to explore the usage of the word “unicorn” in the Kings James Version of the Bible.

There are two biblical references to a “horn” or leader that may be a symbolic allusion to Yahshua, Enoch’s One-Horned Ram. These are found in Psalms 92 and 148:

“But my horn shalt thou exalt like the horn of an unicorn: I shall be anointed with fresh oil.” -Psalm 92:10 (KJV)

“And He has exalted the horn of His people, the praise of all His saints-- of the children of Israel, a people near to Him. Praise the LORD!” - Psalm 148:14

Note that Psalm 92 is taken from the King James Version of the Bible, where the exalted horn or unicorn was taken to be an allusion to Christ. Note also that Psalm 148 is another Hallel Psalm, and begins and ends with the phrase "Hallelu-Yah!" Perhaps this is why it is not so surprising that it speaks of the exalting of the horn, or leader of the people of Israel. Since Psalm 148 is analogous to 2048 AD, it falls during the reign of Yahshua the Messiah, who will likely be the exalted leader of Israel by that time in history!

In Psalm 75, horns are also mentioned in reference to the righteous leaders who follow the Exalted Horn, Yahshua:

"All the horns of the wicked I will also cut off, but the horns of the righteous shall be exalted." - Psalm 75:10

These righteous horns or leaders for Christ lead the good sheep who form the congregations of Gentile believers that are adopted into the family of Israel, and are allegorically seen as the Two Tribes of Joseph: Ephraim and Manasseh. The bull, or ox of the Zodiac sign of Taurus, which represents the Tribe of Joseph, has two horns. These two horns allegorically represent Ephraim and Manasseh - the two Tribes that descended from Joseph (Deuteronomy 33:17). Over the centuries, however, the ox metamorphosed into a horse-like unicorn. This may be why the wild ox that is connected to Joseph is called a unicorn in the King James Version of the Bible:

"His (Joseph's) glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the horns of unicorns... and they are the ten thousands of Ephraim, and they are the thousands of Manasseh." - Deuteronomy 33:17 (KJV)

Since the unicorn is a prominent symbol in European and English Heraldry, could Anglo-Saxon Europeans be claiming to be connected to either one of the two horns, or Tribes of Joseph? Furthermore, could the one ram's horn in Enoch's vision that is raised to prominence over the other, is hated, and is surrounded by enemies in the End Times be one of the nations that spring from the countries connected to the Two Tribes of Joseph? If so, as already shown, two modern nations appear to fulfill the requirements for being the Two Tribes of Joseph. These are Great Britain, which is tied to Manasseh, and the United States, which is allegorically tied to Ephraim. Of these two nations, the one that seems most likely to be the One-Horned Ram of Enoch is the United States, and - by association - modern Israel. These are also the two countries that will likely be brutally attacked, miraculously saved, and specially blessed by Christ in the Last Day.

Do you see the tremendous implications of this connection? The United States and Israel may be the nations forming the one Horn of the Unicorn that represents Christ, and His Church that is now scattered among all nations. This also may be why the United States is to be reckoned as Ephraim, a great Tribe of Israel, and is to suffer the same fate as Israel. For those who wish to read a more detailed study of the history of the Ten Lost Tribes of Israel, please refer to Book Three in this book series, or to "The 'Lost' Ten Tribes of Israel... Found!" by Steven M. Collins. There, you will find detailed examinations of the prophecies, and much historical evidence supporting the modern day location of Judah's Throne, and the Ten Lost Tribes of Israel.

J. H. Allen's book "Judah's Sceptre and Joseph's Birthright" and E. Raymond Capt's book, "Jacob's Pillar" are also listed in the bibliography as resources. However, these men were British Israelites who believed in the supremacy of the Anglo-Saxon Europeans, and saw Great Britain's people as God's chosen people. As such, they believed that Great Britain is destined to rule over all the other nations, and that it was the literal location of the Throne of Judah, which will become the Throne of Christ. As will clearly be shown in this chapter, this is a dangerous heresy. Also keep in mind that all the authors listed here misidentify Ephraim as Great Britain, and also falsely assume that the Jews are no longer to be counted as God's Chosen People Israel. Scripture teaches, however, that anyone who believes in Yahshua as the Son of God, and Messiah are to be counted as sons, or children of God, and by extension, children of Israel (Romans 8:14; 2 Corinth. 6:18; Ephesians 1:5; Rev. 21:7), and the Jews will one day acknowledge Yahshua for who He really is:

"And I will pour out on the house of David and the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication. They will look on me, the one they have pierced, and they will mourn for him as one mourns for an only child, and grieve... as one grieves for a firstborn son." - Zechariah 12:10 (NIV)

"Then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in heaven, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory." - Matthew 24:30

The two preceding Scriptures pertain to the whole world, especially the Jews and Lost Tribes of Israel. Both were once ruled over by the Romans, who crucified Christ. The Gospel of Matthew calls those who mourn "tribes" to signify the Tribes of Israel. Furthermore, according to the Book of Revelation, Twelve Tribes of Israel can still be literally found somewhere on the Earth today. In addition, the "earth" being referred to in the same passage means the land where Israel dwells, and this is not just the nation of Israel, but Europe, Great Britain, and the Americas today. Remember, I am not suggesting that only these nations represent spiritual Israel! On the contrary, these nations only represent the physically blessed, literal descendants of Israel - some of whom are also spiritual Israel through their faith in the true Messiah, Yahshua.

So, just as there is a good and evil Cainan, a good and evil Enoch, a good and evil unicorn, and a good and evil Messiah (or Antichrist), there is a good and evil Israel. Beware of British Israel, which is the evil counterfeit of the real Israel made up of all believers in Christ!

Daniel's Unicorn and the Antichrist

As already shown, it is possible that the members of the British Royal Family are blood descendants of King David of Israel. If so, the Antichrist could well be a member of the British Royal Family. If this is true, The United Kingdom will lead the unholy alliance that forms Revelation's figurative Beast from the Sea. This seems apparent partly because of the symbolism behind the Coat of Arms representing the British Royal Family. This study into the Language of God should teach us all not to take any such symbols lightly. Any and every symbol can, and usually does have some prophetic significance, and virtually nothing happens by accident! Therefore, the fact that the Royal British Coat of Arms contains both a lion and a unicorn is no accident!

Since the One-Horned Ram that will rise to prominence over the other horn of Joseph is likely the United States/Ephraim linked to Israel, then Great Britain must represent Manasseh. Nonetheless, the appearance of the lion and unicorn on the British Coat of Arms implies that Great Britain sees itself as the modern prophesied representative of, and replacement for Ephraim and Manasseh, as well as Judah. Through the symbol of the unicorn, Great Britain may also be claiming to be the One-Horned Ram of Enoch's prophecy. However, there is another source of prophetic unicorn imagery in Scripture that the British Royalty could be connected to. It is found in the Book of Daniel.

Now, on the British Coat of Arms, or Shield of the British Crown shown on the next page are many symbols that supposedly show royal alliances through intermarriage. There, the golden lion - which many believe represents the Lion of Judah - stands across from a rearing white unicorn, which is a symbol supposedly tied to Christ, and the dual Tribe of Joseph. Incidentally, these same allegorical devices once appeared on the Royal Arms of the Monarch of Scotland. However, as stated previously, a rearing horse is also a symbol for the Tribe of Dan, and the unicorn on the British Coat of Arms looks like a white horse with one horn, though it has cloven feet like a goat, sheep, or bovine animal, and the tail of a bull, or ox, which shows its association with a half tribe of Joseph. Nonetheless, since this unicorn is facing left, it is in a sinister pose, and may signify the left horn of the Cherubim, or the Antichrist, as well as the Tribe of Dan.

Royal Coat of Arms Used By British Monarchs

The prophecy in the eighth chapter of the Book of Daniel concerns the horn of a male goat, rather than a male sheep, or ram. After the prophecy of the One-Horned Goat is given, the angel Gabriel interprets it for Daniel:

"The ram which you saw, having the two horns -- they are the kings of Media and Persia. And the male goat is the kingdom of Greece. The large horn that is between its eyes is the first king."

"And in the latter time of their kingdom, when the transgressors have reached their fullness, a king shall arise, having fierce features, who understands sinister schemes. His power shall be mighty, but not by his own power; he shall destroy fearfully, and shall prosper and thrive; he shall destroy the mighty, and also the holy people."

"Through his cunning he shall cause deceit to prosper under his rule; and he shall exalt himself in his heart. He shall destroy many in their prosperity. He shall even rise against the Prince of princes; but he shall be broken without human means." - Daniel 8:20-21, 23-25

In the above prophecy, Gabriel discloses the identity of a two-horned ram, and a one horned goat. The two-horned ram is reminiscent of the Bull symbolizing Taurus, as well as the Ram symbol of Aries. We are told that the two-horned ram signified ancient Media and Persia. These two kingdoms replaced other powerful kingdoms - the Medians taking over the lands of the Assyrians, and the Persians occupying the former lands of the Babylonians. In modern times, the ancient kingdom of Assyria is allegorically tied to the United States, and the kingdom of Babylonia is connected to Great Britain. This connection will be explained in a moment when we examine the prophecies in Ezekiel.

In Daniel's vision, the Unicorn, or One-Horned Goat was Greece, and specifically represented Alexander the Great in the past. We are also told that four kingdoms will emerge from the one "broken horn," or empire forged by Alexander in his conquest of the world. At Alexander's death, his four generals divided his empire into four kingdoms. Ptolemy took Egypt and the Levant, which consisted of modern Palestine and Lebanon. Cassander took Macedonia, or what is now Greece and Albania. Lysimachus took Thrace, which consists of the Balkan Peninsula between the Adriatic and Black Seas - where parts of Hungary, Bulgaria, and Romania are located, and Seleucus eventually ruled the Seleucid Empire, consisting of what are now eastern Turkey, Syria, Iran, Iraq, Afghanistan, Pakistan, and India.

Today, these four kingdoms can be identified as four groups of nations consisting of the central Muslim, or Arab nations including Iran and Iraq, the western Greco-Roman nations of the United Kingdom, Mexico, South America, and Europe, the Slavic nations of former Soviet Russia, and the Asian countries of Pakistan, India, Southeast Asia, China, and Japan.

As mentioned earlier, and shown in "The Language of God in Humanity," Yahshua's Parable of the Sheep and the Goats allegorically shows that goats represent the damned, while sheep represent the saved.

The One-Horned Goat therefore represents an evil leader, and his kingdom, which is slated for destruction. The prophet Daniel tells us that this leader will “rise against the Prince of princes.” Since the phrase “Prince of princes” is the same as saying “King of kings,” which is a title for Christ, this one-horned goat represents a nation, or group of nations led by the Antichrist.

The One-Horned Goat’s horn that represented Alexander’s empire also signifies the future Babylon the Great - the empire of the Antichrist. This latter day Babylon is not a future kingdom any longer, but already rules the world financially, and will soon rule it politically, militarily, and religiously. This is the European Union (EU), which is headed by the United Kingdom. In the rest of this chapter, we will examine Scriptures suggesting that Great Britain, Europe, and several other nations that figure prominently in End Time events will be, and already are partially ruled by the Antichrist, and his followers.

Though now nominally considered Roman Catholic, this evil empire of the One-Horned Goat is already embracing the Pagan culture of the Greeks and Romans. Like Alexander, the Ancient Greeks and Romans rejected the idea of sin and evil, and knew nothing of the concept of Original Sin. Likewise, in modern Europe, Christianity is considered a religion of fools by the majority, and many Europeans are now either atheistic humanists, Muslims, or professing Pagans such as Buddhists, Hindus, New Age mystics, Satanists, and Wiccans.

In the heraldic iconography employed throughout Europe and Great Britain, the one horned goat or unicorn is a symbol connected to the Half-Tribe of Joseph called Manasseh, as well as the Tribe of Dan. The Tribe of Dan not only represents several modern regions like Scandinavia, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales, but also allegorically represents the people throughout the world who are diametrically opposed to the good deeds and Gospel message of Yahshua, the godly One-Horned Ram, and His righteous Sheep.

The Harlot and the Beasts from the Sea and the Earth

Using the Language of God, it should be fairly easy to further identify Babylon the Great, which is represented by a woman called a harlot. To find out more about the woman, and the Beast she rides atop of, the Old Testament gives us several clues. First of all, Babylon in the Old Testament is not only a city, but an entire region of land that worshipped the false deities of Babylon. In today’s world, that same region is inhabited primarily by Muslim Arabs, who worship the old
